ROTARY TO CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY

Members and Wives to Gather on Thursday, March 8.

HARRY WEBB FINED

Al. Eastman Describes Drive for Boy Scout Budget

At the regular noon-day luncheon meeting of the Glendale Rotary Club, held yesterday in the auditorium of the Citizens' building with forty members and visitors present, announcement was made of the first anniversary of the local club to be celebrated on Thursday, March 8, to which the members and their wives are invited. This date also being the eighteenth anniversary of Rotary International, the district governor will be present, as well as a number of other visitors.

President Roy L. Kent was in charge of the business session. France Henry led in the singing, accompanied at the piano by Pau. Carson. The visiting Rotarians included Bartley Sims, J. C. Crawford, W. S. Sandison, all of Burbank; Bert E. Helborn of Spokane, Wash.; Ed Stafford of Marquette, Mich., J. Will Johnson of Pueblo, Colo., and P. L. Hatch of the Glendale & Montrose Railway company.

Harry Webb, who has been east, was welcomed home and was fined for wearing a pair of fawn colored spats. A letter was recived from the Kiwanis club inviting the Rotary club to meet with the former organization at its noon luncheon on Thursday, when Fred Deal will give a talk on the "Telephone Business." A letter was also received from the district president advising of the Rotary district council which will be held this year at Pasadena, from April 5 to 7, inclusive.

President Roy Kent told of a new organization which has been started, the membership consisting of the presidents of the luncheon clubs, the Rotary, Kiwanis, Progressive, Chamber of Commerce and Credit Men's associations. The name of the club is to be the Round Table, and the functions will be of a civic character. Mr. Kent also told of the Glendale Rotary Club's recent trip to Burbank to inaugurate the Burbank Rotary Club, which has a charter membership of seventeen. The first president of the new club is J. C. Crawford, mayor of Burbank, and meetings will be held an Tuesday, with luncheon at 12:15 o'clock. Mr. Crawford was present and responded for the Burbank club.

Dr. Fay Stone was absent from the meeting. Both he and Mrs. Stone are ill with influenza at the Glendale sanitarium. Al Eastman, president of the Verdugo Hills Council of Boy Scouts, gave a short talk in reference to the drive to finance the Boy Scout work for the next two years. The drive will start next Tuesday. At 6:30 o'clock Monday evening, a dinner will be held in the Citizens' building auditorium for all the members of the teams. France Henry, George Bentley and Jack Huntley, who are the patrol leaders for the Glendale Rotary Club in the Scout drive, each gave a shor talk to the members of his team.

Val Hollister was called on to give a short talk on Rotary membership. Harry Webb extended thanks to the club for a vase he received from the club on his birthday, when he was absent in the east.

STREET ZONING VERY DANGEROUS PROBLEM

Members of the city council agreed Thursday night they would have to look sharp not to be caught napping on some of the applications coming before them in regard to the zoning of streets. After a protestant from East Chestnut street had addressed them concerning a petition to have that thoroughfare from Glendale Ave. to Louise street made "a first class residence district" against which he offered a protest, they agreed to look into the matter further. He stated that three of the petitioners for the special zoning have duplex houses on their lots and one plans to build on the rear, converting his premises into a bungalow court.

Vernon Captures Basketball Score From Legion Team

The Sunday school boys from Vernon with their brilliant orange glaze uniforms were too much for the Legion's captainless basket tossers, and they were able to hand Glendale the minor part in a 32 to 24 score.

The line-up follows:

Glendale—Hayward, Clanin, Austin, forwards; Bunker, center; Keller, Dick, guards.

Vernon—Gibbs, Rogers, forwards; Hughes, center; Cooper, Tillon, Gibbs, guards.

Baskets: Glendale — Hayward 3, Clanin 4, Bunker 3, Keller 2. Vernon—Hughes 9, Rogers 6, Gibbs 1.

There should be a crowd of Glendale rooters in the Los Angeles Y. M. C. A. next Tuesday night. Two goods teams will make it worth while.

DOCTOR DIES ON P. E. CAR L. A. BOUND

Dr. N. H. Pardon Succumbs to Heart Trouble Early Today

LIVED HERE 13 YEARS

Survived by Three Daughters, All Residents of Glendale

Dr. N. H. Pardon of 606 North Maryland avenue died of heart failure this morning, February 9, 1923, as he was going to Los Angeles on the Pacific Electric street car. Mr. Pardon came to Glendale in 1910 from Monroe, Michigan, where he had been a practicing physician for eighteen years. He had an attack of leakage of the heart while in the east and was advised that he could not continue his practice. He then came to Glendale. At the time of his death he was in the employ of the Santa Fe.

Dr. Pardon was 54 years of age and a member of Fanaria Masonic lodge of Monroe, Michigan. His wife passed away over three years ago. He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Joseph Walsh, Mrs. Sabin Buck and Miss Leah Pardon, all of Glendale. Funeral arrangements will be announced later. L. G. Scovern Undertaking company in charge.

AUTO ACCIDENTS

The rain of yesterday resulted in wet streets and these, in turn, were responsible for six automobile accidents.

One mishap occurred when automobiles driven by John A. Gardner, 1280 Mariposa street, and J. Groen, 419 West Oak, came together, the accident occurring at the corner of Brand and Colorado at 8 a. m. The fender of the Gardner machine was damaged.

Another melee took place on Verdugo road when a machine operated by E. H. Greham, 714 1-2 East Orange Grove and another piloted by W. H. Eppley, address not known, collided. The accident occurred at 6:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

J. M. Fife, 516 North Jackson street, and Ross Green of North Adams street, were operating machines that collided at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the corner of Wilson and Kenwood streets. No one was injured, but the fender of the Fife machine was damaged.

As a milk delivery wagon of the Glendale Creamery company was proceeding along Arden avenue at 10 o'clock this morning, the horse, frightened by an automobile, jumped to one side, one of the shafts crashing through a window of the automobile owned by Capt. Loving of 1021 Matilija road. The horse was not injured.

A motorcycle driven by Charles Skelton, 1219 North Central and an auto operated by F. H. Lowe of 310 West Patterson, came together at the corner of Central and Doran at 8 o'clock yesterday morning. The Lowe machine was approaching from the north on Central. The motorcycle, according to Mr. Lowe, tried to pass in front of the automobile, without heeding the arm signal given by Mr. Lowe. The machines were slightly damaged.

Two cars, one driven by Alfred H. Nichols, 120 North Brand boulevard, and another, the operator of which could not be learned, collided at the corner of Jackson and Broadway, at 7 o'clock last night. No one was injured and the fenders of the cars were damaged. Nichols claims that the driver of the other machine tried to pass him, as he was turning the corner after giving the proper arm signal.

ROUND TABLE IS A NEW CIVIC UNIT

Presidents of Luncheon Clubs, C. of C. and Mayor Belong

TO HARMONIZE VIEW

For Discussion City Matters Brought Before Members' Units

A new organization has been formed in Glendale. It is the Round Table. It is to meet once a week. Its membership is limited to the presidents of the luncheon clubs of the city business men, and in addition the presidents of the chamber of commerce, the city council, and the Glendale Credit Association.

The subjects that, it is announced, may be brought before the Round Table, are those which individuals of Glendale, or otherwise, wish to have brought before the various organizations of the city.

In the course of its proceedings, the routine subjects of public discussion would include public affairs and policies of the city, business and financial operations of various kinds.

The membership of the Round Table consists of Roy Kent, president of the Rotary club; D. Ripley Jackson, postmaster of Glendale, president of the National Exchange club; Owen Emery, president of the Credit Association of Glendale; Jesse Smith, president of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce; Mayor Spencer Robinson, of Glendale; A. L. Ferguson, vice-principal of the Glendale Union High School, president of the Kiwanis club.

The origination of the Round Table is credited to D. Ripley Jackson.

If a subject is taken up for consideration at any of the clubs which it is felt would be of general interest, it may be taken up for discussion at the Round Table so that the same interpretation may be carried back to the respective organizations. This does not mean a decision but as discussions on general subjects come up the same interpretation may be carried to the organizations on that specific subject.

CASA VERDUGO TO DECIDE SCHOOL DISTRICT

Meeting to Be Held This Evening of Sycamore Canyon Folks

Superintendent R. D. White reports that a meeting is to be held this evening of the heads of families in the Sycamore Canyon district to go over the matter of petitions for the annexation of that territory to Glendale for school purposes only. The petitions being circulated in Casa Verdugo for a similar purpose are going very well and Mr. White hopes to be able to go before the county supervisors with these instruments Monday morning and push the matter so that the board of education can begin advertising the election next week.

New teachers elected by the teachers' committe of the board on Thursday, were: Miss Ethel Culbertson of this city, who will teach at Central Avenue, where she will use the room now occupied as a sewing room, the sewing classes being transferred to the auditorium stage; Miss Julia Burton of 114 West Windsor road, who will be added to the Acacia Avenue staff and occupy what is now the teachers' room, which will seat about 25, and last, Miss Ruth G. Maxon of 411 North Jackson, who will be a kindergarten assistant at Doran school.

HOLLISTER HEADS CITY COMMISSION ON PLAYGROUNDS

One of the important pieces of business put through by the city council Thursday night was the election of members of the Park and Playground Commission nominated by Councilman Kimlin as follows: V. M. Hollister, Peter Ferry, L. T. Rowley, Rev. C. M. Calderwood and Dr. Jessie E. Russell.

CITY PLATTING COMPLICATIONS BEFORE COUNCIL

On Northwest Mr. Farinaci Protests; Mrs. Moberly on South

Complications arising from the rapid growth of Glendale and the haste with which acreage is platted and sold, were illustrated Thursday night at the meeting of the city council when protests were registered against two maps of subdivisions submitted to the board for acceptance.

On motion of Councilman Lapham, the board had voted to accept the map of Tract No. 6179, which is in the northwest. Mr. Farinaci, who owns an adjoining subdivision approved two years ago, registered a nery protest. The other case involved a difference between Lloyd Wilson and Mrs. M. P. Moberly, relative to a subdivision on South San Fernando road.

Tract No. 6179, owned by W. H. Reynolds, appears not to have been laid out in harmony with that of Mr. Faranaci, who declared he would be damaged to the extent of $30,000. He left the council chamber threatening to bring suit against the city, to get out an injunction against the opening of streets as proposed, in the neighboring tract, and failing in that to revenge himself by permitting cheap shacks to be built upon his own lots and thus damaging the district. He stated that W. E. Evans represented him as attorney, but Mr. Evans was not present. He also declared Councilman Stephenson had assured him as late as 5 o'clock that the map would not come up for approval that evening; but Councilman Stephenson was absent too.

The complication seemed to have grown out of the fact that the council long ago permitted the owners of two widely separated tracts to subdivide them according to different systems. Now the intervening territory has been put on the market and the two misfits have come together. Council members insisted they had no choice but to accept the subdivisions as offered, that they had merely given the same privileges to Mr. Farinaci's neighbors as they had allowed him. E. H. Botsford supported Mr. Farinaci's protest. His 20 acres was purchased from Dr. Kate Black.

The other subdivision dispute was given a hearing at the beginning of the session when Lloyd Wilson on his own behalf, and Attorney James McBryde on behalf of Mrs. M. P. Moberly, appeared before the council. Mr. McBryde protested against the acceptance of the map of Mr. Wilson's subdivision running from San Fernando road to the Southern Pacific tracks on the ground that a jog would be made in the extension of Garfield avenue. In his opinion these jogs were a great detriment and in this case, he argued, were unnecessary because his client was willing to give the necessary 59 feet for the street.

Mr. Wilson in defense presented evidence to show he had endeavored to get Mr. and Mrs. Moberly to join him in putting Garfield thru on the line suggested, and his proposition had been refused; that to make another platting, now that they have changed their minds, would cause him great trouble and expense.

The council seemed quite conversant with the matter and ruled that inasmuch as Garfield was a short street, which in all probability would never go further than the railroad, they would accept the map when Mr. Wilson has made certain minor changes which he mentioned. Mr. McBryde said he would reserve the right to again protest on behalf of his client when the matter should come before the council another time.

MOTHER URGES CITY TO GUARD THE TRAFFIC

The sympathies of the city council were excited at the meeting Thursday night by a communication received from Mrs. Roberta Young reciting the serious injuries sustained by her little grandson who was run over by a truck at Colorado and Pacific and urging the city to provide greater protection to children on their way to school by the employment of more traffic officers.

The communication was ordered filed and the city manager was instructed to write Mrs. Young that the board is considering the matter. In discussion of the matter it was agreed that it would be financially impossible to provide traffic officers at all the corners within several blocks of the school and the employment of even one traffic officer at each school would be no inconsiderable burden.

Mayor Robinson indicated a hope that the problem might be worked out by co-operation of the teachers and possibly the employment of the larger boys during the periods when children would be going to and coming from the schools.

SHRINERS AND FRIENDS PACK THEATRE

Evening Performance of "Smile Again," Shows Cleverness

BY CORINNE ORFF

Every seat was taken at the T., D. & L. Theatre when the curtain went up on the opening act of the Shrine club's show, "Smile Again," at the evening performance, and the audience did smile and "smile again" as each clever bit of humor, attractive chorus number and dance hit was presented. The applause was very generous.

A feature of the production was the costuming. A particularly attractive chorus number was "Eskimo Baby," by "Patsy," Miss Dorothy Woods, and chorus. Patsy was a pretty picture in costume of white with fur trimming, and the audience did not mind in the least being the targets for a snow ball battle. Bob and Mitzi, played by Nathan Dial and Peggy Garretson, were also favorites. "Blondes or Brunettes," no wonder Rodney, "Mac" McCoubrey, found it difficult to make a choice from the attractively gowned misses of the chorus who presented this song number with him.

The vocal star of the evening was Miss Marie Oliver, who wore some fetching gowns and sang "Smile Again," "Baby Mine" and other numbers. Lorna, the Hawaiian maid, Miss Azella Zorana, won the hearts of the audience with her acting. She also led the chorus in "Honolulu Lulu," with its bevy of beauties in Hawaiian costumes.

The Peacock Dance created and executed by Miss Kathleen Woods, was a very graceful exhibition of this young lady's talents and preceded the dress display depicting fashions from the various ages and countries. The "Gingham Girl Revue," staged by professional models for Pendroys brought forth much applause.

Captain D. Ripley Jackson, president of the Shrine Club of Glendale, made a short talk thanking the public for its very hearty support in this first show presented by the local organization. He stated that the club planned to present other plays and eventually to build a clubhouse in Glendale. Mr. Jackson introduced Past President Heisser of the club, to whom he said the success of the show was due. Mr. Heisser in turn thanked the members of the cast for their untiring efforts and also thanked the Shrine Club for the souvenir which was presented to him by Mr. Jackson. At the close of the show, Miss Hazel Lindoft, who wrote the play and directed it, was introduced.

A detailed story of the afternoon performance will be found on another page.

RAILROAD BOARD CONSIDERS TRUCK APPLICATIONS

New Line Projected to Glendale and Tujunga; West Side Project Denied

The application of A. J. Scribner for permission to operate an auto truck freight service between Los Angeles, Glendale, Montrose, La Canada, Flintridge, La Crescenta, Tujunga and Sunland has been denied by the Railroad Commission.

H. E. Shrainer was denied a certificate to operate an automobile truck line between Los Angeles, Glendale and dairy ranches in the vicinity of Burbank, Lankershim and Van Nuys, in an order issued by the Railroad Commission today. Applicant was ordered to re-route his present service from Lankershim via the Lankershim-Burbank main road, thence southerly via San Fernando boulevard to Glendale and Los Angeles, returning over the same identical route.

CITY TO BUY ITS SUPPLIES IN GLENDALE

An order was issued by City Manager Reeves to all employees of the city this morning to the effect that all supplies for the needs of Glendale must be purchased so far as possible from merchants in this city. Purchases may be made outside the city only when the desired articles cannot be obtained here.

A bulletin to that effect was sent to all departments of the city by Mr. Reeves.

REALTORS PROTECT COPYRIGHT

Realty Board Notifies C. of C. to Cease Unauthorized "Realtor" Designation

USED BY SECRETARY

Only Legal to Members of Local Branch of National Organization

That the Glendale chamber of Commerce must refrain from further issuance of its secretary's annual report until all reference to real estate agent members, who are not members of the Glendale Realty Board, or similar organizations, as "realtors" is stricken from the publication, was the decision reached at the meeting of the Glendale Realty Board at its luncheon Thursday.

This was decided after the chamber had been severely criticised for using the word "realtor" opposite the names of the members of the chamber, regardless of whether or not they are members of the Glendale Realty Board or any similar organization.

"The name 'realtor' can only be used legally by members of an organized realty board, such as the local board, the state board or the national organization," said Charles B. Guthrie, in presenting the matter to the attention of the board. "I believe the chamber of commerce is overstepping its rights when it uses the name as it has done, and I for one believe that we should not stand for anything of this kind. If we don't stand up for our rights no one else will."

"I believe the blame for this should be placed right where it belongs," said Dr. Jessie A. Russell. "There are many of those people in connection with whose names the word 'realtor' has been used who did not know a thing about it until they saw their names in print. The chamber is responsible for this thing and I believe it should be made to stand for it."

"I move," said A. M. Yale, "that the Glendale chamber of commerce be instructed to refrain from issuing any more of those booklets until this mistake has been corrected. Just because that organization has done this thing it does not follow that it should be allowed to continue to do it. We can compel them to refrain from issuing anymore of these books and I believe we should do so."

When this motion was put to a vote it was adopted unanimously.

W. C. T. U. HAS VERY ENCOURAGING OPENING

In spite of threatening weather there was an encouraging attendance at the opening session of the Regional Conference of the W. C. T. U., which is being held at the Central Christian church today, and which is drawing delegates from San Fernando, Burbank, Eagle Rock, South Pasadena and Tujunga. A program of special interest will be given this evening when the state president, Mrs. Eva Wheeler, will give a talk on "Around the World in Sixty Minutes," which will be illustrated by twenty ladies arrayed in the costumes of as many different countries.

BAPTIST WOMEN HOLD ALL DAY MEETING

The all-day meeting of the Baptist Women's Union held at the church on Thursday drew an excellent attendance. Sewing occupied the ladies from 10 a. m. until noon, when a bountiful luncheon was served and a talk was made by Mrs. Charles Robinson, who recited her experiences among the negroes a few years ago. As a result of her talk a study class was formed which will meet Wednesday mornings at the church at 10 o'clock to study under the supervision of Mrs. Robinson the book, "The Trend of the Races."

Mrs. E. E. Ford presided over the program which followed the luncheon and which included a piano duet by Mrs. Hosking and Mrs. Ray Bentley; vocal solo, 'Negro Lullaby," by Mrs. Wanacott; and an address by Dr. Griffith, pastor of the Second Baptist church of Los Angeles, the largest negro church in Southern California.

MULTIPLE LISTING CREDITED WITH BIG SALES

$71,000 Worth of Realty Changed Hands Thru System, Reported

That seven sales, having a total valuation of $71,000, have been made through the multiple system of the Glendale Realty board thus far in February, was the announcement made by Secretary Hayward at the meeting of that organization Thursday noon. The club met this announcement with applause as it is the best record made by the multiple system up to this time.

The speakers of the day at this session were Mr. Vickery, chairman of the appraisal committee of Los Angeles Realty board, and Tom Ingersol, secretary of the same organization. The subject of Mr. Vickery's address was "The Appraisal of the Value of Real Estate."

Mayor Robinson and J. H. Wende, who were appointed as a committee to see why the Glendale chamber of commerce does not turn over to the Realty board the inquiries that are received by the chamber from outside sources relative to real estate in Glendale, made their report at this meeting.

Mr. Robinson stated that it was explained by Secretary Rhoades that if communications of that kind were turned over to the board they would be answered by a dozen or more of realty men. This would give the prospective resident in Glendale the impression that everything in Glendale is for sale and that this city is a good place to stay away from. This committee was continued for further investigation of this subject.

CLERK AND TREASURER HOLD OVER

Need Not Be Elected With Councilmen in Spring, Says City Attorney

PRESENT MAY STAY

Says Charter Doesn't Provide for Willing Vacancies in These Offices

One of the important things learned at the meeting of the city council Thursday night by the councilmen and those of the public who were present was the fact that it will not be necessary to elect a city clerk and a city treasurer this spring. The information came through an opinion rendered by Attorney Hartley Shaw which follows in part:

Under the provisions of our charter a city clerk and a city treasurer were elected at the election held in June, 1921, and Section 6, Article V of the charter provides that they shall serve until the third Monday of April, 1925, and until their successors are elected and qualified. After this election the persons elected city clerk and city treasurer, respectively, resigned and vacated their offices. There is no provision in the charter specifically making provision for the filling of vacancies in these two offices or declaring how long persons appointed to fill vacancies shall serve or when their appointments shall expire. Section 13 of Article VI provides for the mode of filling vacancies in the council, and that a successor of the person so appointed shall be elected at the next regular election at which members of the council are chosen. The absence of any similar provision as to the clerk and the treasurer, leads to the conclusion that persons appointed to fill vacancies in these offices hold until the expiration of their terms, this being the general rule in such case in the absence of some provision to the contrary. The present incumbents of these offices were appointed by the council, which appears to be sanctioned by Section 26, Article 23 of the charter, declaring that all powers of the city except as otherwise provided by this charter are hereby vested in the council. At any rate the present incumbents are de facto officers and no provision is made for holding any election to fill those offices until the election which will occur in April, 1925.

Yours very truly,
HARTLEY SHAW,
City Attorney.

NO INCREASE IN THE MONTROSE LINE FREIGHT RATE

P. L. Hatch, superintendent of the Glendale-Montrose Railroad, is correcting a misleading statement which he says emanated from San Francisco, to the effect that his line has applied for an increase in freight rates. This is not true, he says, but grew out of the fact that the road has applied for a more equitable distribution of the existing rate between its road and the Union Pacific on outside traffic which will give it a larger proportion. It will not affect the freight consignees in any way but it is a matter wholly between the two railroads which are to be closely allied now that the Glendale-Montrose will electrify the Union Pacific line and operate cars over it.

Mr. Hatch points out that his line has not increased its freight rates since the war whereas other lines have done so. For that reason it is asking for a larger share of the through rate.

Montgomery, chairman of ways and means and first vice-president of the club, reports a wonderful stock has been contributed which includes everything imaginable—cut glass, pictures, books, fancy work, bird cages, children's clothing, including sweaters, which are entirely new, never having been worn; dishes, furniture, and other things, which buyers will discover.

WASHINGTON MILITIA IS UNEASY

Wondering What Legislature Will Do With It

OLYMPIA, Wash., Feb. 9.—The state of Washington, particularly its uniformed National Guard, is watching the legislature with a feeling of uncertainty just now as the lawmakers rack their brains regarding ways and means of cutting down the guard's expenses and at the same time keeping the body up to its present efficiency and attracting more young men to its standard. Contemplated pending bills would make big slashes in its maintenance fund.

The legislature probably will take no action on the proposed memorial to President Harding, petitioning for the release of the so-called political prisoners now held behind bars under conviction of violating the federal espionage act. The memorial, which the house has indefinitely suspended, seeks the release of those "whose conviction was based on expressions of opinion, not on overt acts."

Warden John W. Pace, head of the state penitentiary at Walla Walla, is meeting considerable aggressive opposition from the state's industrial leaders to his plan for starting self-supporting factories and shops at the state institution. Having discovered that the jute bag industry has stagnated on his hands, with about 750,000 bags unsold because of the high price which the law fixes for state institution products, Warden Pace is now asking the legislature to authorize a bond issue of $400,000 to build a cotton mill and twine spinning plant to furnish his prisoners with work.

King Kleagle L. I. Powell, leader of the Ku Klux Klan in the Pacific Northwest, has asked the legislature to revamp the McKinney bill, prohibiting the wearing of masks or hoods at any save social gatherings indoors, and never at large. The house judiciary has seen the reason in the Kleagle's request and has made the alteration, with the provision that all secret organizations and societies keep the county auditors appraised of their members by semi-annual reports. Kleagle Powell has intimated that hoods and masks will be discarded by the Klan ere long, and that its members will face the world with their faces uncovered.

The present legislature was astonished to discover that King county, in which Seattle is located, is not a class 1 county. It's in a class by itself, called class A. The 1919 legislature provided increased pay from $4500 to $5000 for judges in class 1 counties. King county jurists, who had quietly agitated for the raise, found their pay was the same. They were quietly indignant. Now the legislature is putting through a bill providing $6000 annual pay for judges in class A counties, and everybody is expected to be happy.

It's especially beneficial for women and children as well as men folks. Results are remarkable and there are no bad after-effects. An X-Ray of your spine will absolutely show your condition and enable us to get you well quicker. We have our own X-Ray equipment.

'J. P.' IS INITIATED INTO ORDER OF ETERNAL YOUTH

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Feb. 9.—Having been initiated into the order of eternal youth and admonished never to stop "talking things over with the boys" on the Geology Corner at the university, Professor J. P. Smith, known to hundreds of Stanford graduates as just "J. P.," can smoke, study, and give advice until he's a hundred years old.

Dr. Smith, one of the best loved of professors, has been at Stanford since 1892 as head of the department of geology and mining. He will retire soon at the age of 65, but through the generosity of his old students he will be able to continue with the research work he has been doing. One hundred of those who studied geology and mining under "J. P." decided that they wanted to show in some substantial way their esteem for their friend and adviser. Accordingly they presented him with $10,000 which will enable him to continue the work in which he is engaged.

The gift was a complete surprise to "J. P." In other days he often entertained his students at "camp fires" in his back yard. He thought nothing of an invitation to attend a reunion camp fire given by some of his old friends and students, expecting only a happy reunion and another opportunity to "talk things over with the boys." The surprise came when after the group had discussed "J. P." with entire frankness and initiated him into the order of eternal youth, he was presented with a bank book showing $10,000 deposited to his account.

"J. P. will not get old at 75 or at 85," said Professor Tolman. "In order that he may still smoke cigarets at ripe old age of 100 and give fatherly admonition while so doing, this purse was raised and presented to him by his old students."

ALLOWABLE TAX REDUCTIONS IN INCOME RETURNS

By REX B. GOODCELL
Collector of International Revenue

What items may a taxpayer deduct in ascertaining his net income from all sources?

In arriving at his net income from all sources he is entitled to deduct from gross income the following items:

(a) All the ordinary and necessary expenses paid or incurred during the taxable year in carrying on any trade or business, including reasonable allowance for salaries or other compensation for personal services actually rendered, and rentals or other payments required to be made as a condition to the continued use or possession, for purposes of the trade or business, of property to which the taxpayer has not taken or is not taking title or in which he has no equity.

(b) All interest paid or accrued within the taxable year on indebtedness, except indebtedness incured or continued to purchase or carry obligations or securities (other than obligations of the United States issued after September 24, 1917), the interest upon which is wholly exempt from income tax.

(c) Taxes paid or accrued within the taxable year imposed by the authority of the United States, except the amount of income, war excess profits taxes; or by the authority of any of its possessions, except the amunt of income, war profits and excess profits taxes allowed as a credit under section 222 of the Act; or by the authority of any State or Territory, or any county, school district, municipality, or other taxing subdivision of any State or Territory, not including those assessed against local benefits of a kind tending to increase the value of the property assessed; and by the authority of any foreign country, except the amount of income, war profits, and excess profits taxes allowed as a credit under section 222 of the Act.

(d) Losses sustained during the taxable year and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise, if incurred in trade or business.

(e) Losses sustained during the taxable year and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise, if incurred in any transaction entered into for profit, though not connected with one's trade or business.

(f) Losses sustained during the taxable year of property not connected with the trade or business, if arising from fires, storms, shipwreck, or other casualty or from theft, and if not compensated for by insurance or otherwise.

(g) Debts ascertained to be worthless and charged off during the taxable year.

(h) A reasonable allowance for the exhaustion, wear and tear of property used in trade or business, including a reasonable allowance for obsolecence.

(i) A reasonable allowance for depletion in the case of mines, oil and gas wells, other natural deposits and timber.

(j) Contributions or gifts made within the taxable year to corporations organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual, or to the special fund for vocational rehabilitation authorized by section 7 of the Vocational Rehabilitation Act, to an amount not in excess of 15 per cent of the taxpayer's net income from all sources as computed without the benefit of this paragraph.

What constitutes an item allowable as a deduction as a business expense?

All amounts of ordinary and necessary expenses paid or incurred during the taxable year in the conduct of a business, trade or profession.

This includes all amounts paid by a farmer for labor in preparing his land for a crop and the cultivation, harvesting and marketing of the crops, the cost of the seed and fertalizer used; the amounts expended for labor used in caring for livestock and the cost of the feed. The amounts actually paid in making repairs to farm buildings, but not the dwelling house; repairs to fences, farm machinery, etc.; the cost of materials for immediate use and farm tools which are used up in the course of a year or two, such as binding twine, stock powders, pitchforks, spades, etc.; and the amount of rent paid for a farm may also be claimed.

A merchant may claim as deductions the amounts paid for advertising, hire of clerks and other employes; the cost of the light, fuel, water, telephones, etc. used in or at his place of business, drayage and freight bills; the cost of operating delivery wagons, trucks, and the repairs to same.

A physician may claim as deductions the cost of medicines and medical supplies used by him in the practice of his profession, expenses paid in the operation and repair of an automobile used in making professional calls, dues to medical societies and subscriptions to medical journals, the rent paid for office rooms and the hire of office assistants, the cost of the fuel, light, water, telephone, etc., used in such office rooms; amounts expended for books, medical supplies and surgical instruments of a permanent character are not allowable as deductions.

This, in a general way, outlines the usual expenses incurred by a farmer, or a professional man, which may be claimed as deductions, and the principles underlying these allowances are equally applicable in the case of anyone engaged in a business, trade or profession. In short, all expenses connected directly and solely with the conduct of an income-producing business, trade, profession or vocation are allowable.

Items of personal expenses or items connected in any way with the support, maintenance and well-being of a family are not allowed; neither are the amounts paid for tools, implements, vehicles, machinery, or surgical instruments which are more or less permanent in character, nor the cost of medical, law or other professional books, nor amounts expended in making permanent improvements or betterments of any kind whatsoever, allowable as deductions. These latter items are held to be investments of capital upon which depreciation may be claimed.

No expense or depreciation in connection with a taxpayer's personal residence or automobiles or other property used exclusively for pleasure can be properly deducted under the provisions of the income tax law, as such expenses and depreciations represent "personal living or family expenses."

SHORT COURSE IN LAND SETTLEMENT

It requires $9,024 to finance a 20-acre orchard from the time of acquiring the land, during the twelve years which ordinarily must elapse before the self-sustaining age is reached, according to R. L. Adams, professor of farm management, University of California College of Agriculture.

Full details of this, as well as the financing of other California farm business, will be discussed by Professor Adams on the third day of the short course in land settlement which is to be given in Berkeley at the College of Agriculture.

TICKLESS WATCH IS THE BUNK, THINKS DUMMER

Just Another Step in the World-Wide Soft Pedal Campaign, He Thinks—More and Louder Ticking, His Slogan—Anyhow, the Fire Engines Offer a Greater Field Than Watches for Soft and Low Movements.

"Wonders will never cease," declared O. Howe Dumm. "Here's a German scientist who has invented a tickless watch."

"A ticklish watch?" queried Dummer. "What's the sense of that?"

"Tickless, not ticklish," snapped Dumm. "A noiseless timepiece—a watch that will not tick under any circumstances."

"I have had a watch like that for years," replied Dummer. "It's no credit to me or to the watch and it reflects greatly on the character of the clerk who sold it to me. A tickless watch is nothing to boast of in the newspapers."

"Your watch has nothing to do with the case," insisted Dunn. "This invention, as demonstrated by Heinrich Schiefersteln in Berlin the other day before a board of scientists, may go down in history as one of the greatest of all time. It says here in the newspaper description that the watch runs without faintest suggestion of a tick."

"It looks to me like a mean trick is about to be played on the man who always holds his Waterbury against his ear to see if it is going or not," replied Dummer. "Hereafter he'll have to take his watch apart and watch the wheels go round every time he wants proof that the old turnip is operating according to the five-year guarantee. What's the advantage of having a watch that's so sneakly and deceptive? Have there been any wholesale complaints from indignant citizens that their watches ticked too much?"

"I dunno the why and wherefore of the invention," returned Dumm. "I'm simply informing you of the newspaper report as a matter of interest."

"It hands me a laugh, that's all," argued Dummer, shaking his own Ingersoll in a futile attempt to hear any sound whatsoever from its innards. "If a tickless watch really has been invented it's nothing more nor less than a part of the pussyfooting campaign now sweeping the world. It's just another move by the soft pedal element to keep everything sweet and low. I'm sick of it. What the world needs today is more ticking, not less. My slogan, so far as ticking is concerned, is 'More and Louder!'"

"I never knew before that you were a tick enthusiast," remarked Dumm.

"The more ticking the better," rambled on Dummer. "Who'd want to sit in a room with a clock that never made a sound? It would drive you nutty. And who'd pick out a tickless watch by choice? The only man a tickless watch would benefit would be a crooked jeweler: it would help him to sell a lot of timepieces with their engines missing."

"You seem all upset by the proposition," laughed Dumm.

"It's the bunk," shouted Dummer, now quite hysterical. "The idea of seriously talking about stopping watches and clocks from ticking and yet saying nothing against fire engines tearing around town roaring and tooting and clanging like a New Year's eve in hell! If they want to take the noise and tick out of something that can stand it let 'em take it out of motor fire apparatus. What I can't get through my noodle is why firemen make so much noise going to a fire. I should think they'd try sneaking up on a blaze now and then. They might take it unawares if they tried. And look at all the other noises you have to put up with every day! Can you listen to 'em and then get up any enthusiasm over an invention that takes the tick out of a watch?"

"There's some logic in what you say," admitted Dumm.

"Why don't some scientist do something to take the squeak out of new shoes, or invent a noiseless police whistle or a soundless auto horn or a piano that won't play the scales and Gurlitt's Exercises for Beginners or sumpin that would benefit humanity? Why, I've got an invention this minute that is as sensible as this German professor's."

"Shoot it!" ordered Dumm.

"I'm working on a cookoo clock that will revolutionize the cookoo clock idea."

"How so?" asked Dumm.

"There won't be any cookoo in it," concluded Dummer.

SHALL WE HANG ON?

(By W. M. FINLEY of Elk City, City, Ida., in Stites, Ida., Enterprise.)

I want to say a few words to the young men who go from our farms to attend our colleges. It has been the ambition of us older people to so equip the rising youth of our country that they would be better qualified to lead a more useful and profitable life on the farm, and that is why we have lent our sanction and aid to build up our agricultural institutions all over the land and equip them with all the knowledge that agricultural science has accumulated from all the past.

So we naturally expect that you will be studious and get all the information you can, and return to us and give us the benefit of what you have learned. But I am sorry to say that our fondest hopes are too often disappointed. For just as soon as you have gained a certain amount of knowledge you skedaddle to town. You seem to think that you have learned too much to use out on the old farm, so you hunt for a genteel job in an office or store in any place where you will not be contaminated with the vile environments of rural life.

You do not seem to realize that you are choosing the life of a dependent, the life of a slave. If you do not believe all this, just open your eyes and look about and see the thousands of young people who are working in all sorts of positions where they do not have one chance in a thousand to rise above mediocrity.

Another thing I would like to impress upon the minds of our young men from the country that are attending our colleges, is the fact that anyone who occupies a fixed position for ten years becomes atrophied; he crystalizes in that particular sphere, and it rarely happens that he is qualified to fill any other position. So it leaves him for the remainder of his days the slave of his one little machine.

But not so with the farm. He that will may expand and grow in all directions. It is preposterous to suppose that country people are excluded by their environments from attaining the highest order of human existence.

It has been said that country life is too lonely; that is not true. Country life is what we make it. City life is what the city makes it. For my part, I am content here in the little mountain home, surrounded by the beauties of nature and by those I most care for and who care for me. And when night comes and the stock is all cared for I can go into my house and be entertained by the best writers and the greatest characters of all time, from poor old blind Homer to Kipling. No; I would not change places with the proudest monarch that ever lived, breathed and reigned, surrounded by all the glitter, grandeur and magnificence of a shaky throne.

HAVE KIDNEYS EXAMINED BY YOUR DOCTOR

Take Salts to Wash Kidneys if Back Pains You or Bladder Bothers

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel them from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache; dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.—Adv.

Any breaking out or skin irritation on face, neck or body is overcome quickest by applying Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. TEMPLE OF MUSIC IS MOORISH PALACE

New Brunswick Shoppe Opens Tomorrow With All-Day Reception

Glendale's finest commercial "temple of music," the new home of the Glendale Phonograph Company's artistic Brunswick Shoppe at 123 South Brand boulevard, will give to the visitor the impression of inspirational beauty of the famous Moorish palace, "The Alhambra" of Granada, modified in its architectural lines to conform to the needs of this shop. The formal opening of the Brunswick Shoppe at its new location will be held Saturday afternoon and evening, February 10.

The background for all of the detailed Arabesque designs in rich blues, reds and browns, is of gilt. The beautiful Moorish arches, twisted columns and other architectural details of this period have been incorporated in the general scheme of decoration, which was conceived by William Schultz, who designed the interior of this shop. Mr. Schultz is a resident of Glendale and a professional artist who has decided to commercialize his art. Two beautiful oil paintings done by Mr. Schultz, one exemplifying Schubert's "Serenade," and the other Ordla's "Souvenir," will be hung on either side of the display rooms in panels outlined by the picturesque Moorish arches. These paintings were made especially for this store by Mr. Schultz, who has endeavored to make the entire decorative scheme an example of what he feels will be the finest thing in the line of painting done in a commercial way.

A large demonstrating booth at the front of the mezzanine floor has been finished in the Japanese style and in the booth just in back of that the Grecian design was used. On the lower floor there are also two booths showing the Moorish influence. The furniture for these booths has all been milled specially so that the period style might be correct throughout. Specially wrought electric fixtures were made for this unique shop.

In carrying out the decoration in such minute detail, which it has taken three months to accomplish, the proprietors had in view the idea that when it was completed this place of business would be looked upon with pride by the people of Glendale who have artistic appreciation, not only for music but for the art of painting and decorating. The achievement has been made possible through the prosperous business relationship which has been held by this firm with the people of Glendale for the past five years.

Mr. M. Lightner is manager of the Brunswick Shoppe, which was formerly located at 126 South Brand boulevard. He has arranged an interesting musical program, to be given from 2 o'clock until 5 in the afternoon and from 7 o'clock until 10 in the evening, during which the vistors will be shown about the place of business and afforded every courtesy. There will be saxophone solos by Earl Floyd and also by little Miss Adeline Woodberry and Miss Jackie Barton, and the little ladies will do some fancy dancing. A. M. Kelly will give some violin solos and there will be vocal numbers by O. W. Andreson and Captain D. Ripley Jackson. Kelly's six-piece Shrine Club Orchestra will also play in the afternoon and evening, during which request numbers will also be given. The members of the orchestra are Messrs. Earl Floyd, M. Kauffman, Donaldson, Hitt, Fraser and Kelly.

Souvenirs to be given away by little Margaret Salmacia during the afternoon to children visitors accompanied by their parents.

'SMILE AGAIN' IS REVELATION OF LOCAL TALENT

Afternoon Performance Shows Embarrassment of Riches and Beauty

BY GERTRUDE GIBBS

"Smile Again," the tantalizingly beautiful show and musical comedy produced at the T. D. & L. Theatre Thursday afternoon and evening under the auspices of the Shrine Club of this city, left one big regret—that it couldn't have had a longer run and given us more opportunity to get better acquainted with some of our really wonderful local talent.

The first act was an embarrassment of riches it was so prodigal of good things. "Jack" and his four college pals, the feminine stars and chorus, invested it with plenty of go and zest, and if a patron had been forced to forego the balance of the performance he would have gotten the worth of his ticket right there.

The quartet mentioned, composed of "Bill" Sykes, who played "Duane Dunstan;" Nathan Dial ("Bob Royce"); "Mac" McCoubrey ("Rodney Williams"); and Victor Evans ("Dick Evans") did excellent work as singing comedians and loyal pals to "Jack Rockwell," played by Paul Shoaf, whose tangled love affairs furnished the plot of the extravanganza.

The lyrics, written by Miss Hazel Madelin Lindoft, who rehearsed and directed the affair, were well interpreted by both soloists and chorus and all in all it was a performance unique and creditable. Miss Zalla Zorane assisted her in the work and figured prominently and delightfully in the cast as the "Princess Lorna from Hawaii."

It was a pleasure to see and hear pretty Marie Oliver, so recently a Glendale high school girl, in the stellar role of "Yvonne," and the audience felt a proprietary pride in the fascinating specialty dances by the Woods sisters. Dorothy was bewitchingly pretty as the "Eskimo Baby," and Kathleen quite wonderful in her original peacock dance.

Another star of magnitude was Peggie Garretson as "Mitzi, the French maid." Gracie Hoffman, as "Frenchy," who delivered the bonnet, was a shy flower who won all hearts.

Others who could not have been spared were: Mrs. Mary J. Oliver as "Mrs. Mollie Rockwell," mother of "Jack;" Baby Elizabeth Hoffman as "Little Sister;" Joe Higgins as "Col. John Rockwell," father of "Jack;" Louisa Howard as "Liza Brown," the cook; Tom Moore as "Rastus Washington, Shoffer." Laura Sutton, as "Bob's" sister, "Katherine," also filled a needed role.

The satisfying feature of the performance as a whole was the charming chorus "background" provided for almost every solo and group number. The costuming for which Mrs. Rosa Rehn was given credit, was exquisite. The girls who wore the costumes were untarnished by time and fairly dewey with youth. They may not all be beauties, but they looked beautiful to the audience and it is interesting to know that their everyday names are Mimi Crisman, Lois Whitman, Barbara Baker, Virginia Buriff, Grace Hoffman, Mae Scott, Martha Siberell and Dorothy Sayler. The dancing and evolutions of the chorus girls were exceedingly pretty and the best kind of an advertisement for Miss Vergie Ellis who trained them.

Frank Sayler proved his versatility by doubling the parts of taxi man, delivery man and preacher, and in spite of his dual life did not look the villain.

Unfortunately, the matinee audience was of the conservative, middle-aged sort which enjoys but does not slop over. Its sincere applause showed critical appreciation but was not of the stampede order that some of the scenes deserved. It sat up and listened, however, from the first snappy chorus by "Mitzi and the Girls," until the curtain went down on the "Good Night Everybody." It registered special pleasure in the lyric, "Dear Old College Days Are Over," which has a most appealing melody and rythm and which was well sung by the five pals.

It also was not ashamed to show its interest in the wonderful pretty "Gingham Maid in Glendale" put on between two of the acts by Pendroys. A pleasant revelation it was of the evolution of this one-time plebian fabric, and the gowns with hats and parasols to match in some instances, were displayed to advantage by professional models Glendale is learning to know—Maybelle Armstrong, Katherine Sumner, Mae Lyle Tayo, Grace McQuoid and Juanita Stone.

Kelly's Shrine Orchestra had no loaf and must have done considerable rehearsing to so well cover the score and provide music for the interludes between acts including the fashion show.

SUBURBAN WEEK ENDS SUNDAY AT HOLLYWOOD

Douglas Fairbanks in "Robin Hood," in its seventeenth week at Grauman's Hollywood Egyptian Theater, is the attraction that is luring thousands of out-of-town people to the film capital, Hollywood, where "1923 Suburban Week" is now being celebrated at the boulevard cinema palace. A special mail-order department has been opened in the box-office of the playhouse to handle the many requests for seat reservations that are daily pouring in from various points in Southern California via telephone, telegraph and by mail. Arrangements have been made with the Pacific Electric railway to add sufficient extra equipment on their various routes to accommodate those coming to Hollywood to attend the theater celebration.

"1923 Suburban Week" will come to an end Sunday night. It is anticipated that thousands of out-of-town patrons will take advantage of this occasion to witness a showing of Douglas Fairbanks in "Robin Hood."

A certain actor who has been known for his matrimonial adventures, one day approached a physician and asked for a thorough physical examination.

"I want to see that I'm fit for a good many years yet, doc," he said. "You know I'm to be married again soon, for the fifth time."

"H-m," muttered the examiner as he put the stethoscope to the actor's heart. "Of course, this fifth lady is the only girl in the world for you, and this is positively your last matrimonial venture?"

"Oh, come, doctor," cried the thespian, much alarmed. "I'm not as bad off as that, am I?"

An English lady was the owner of a prize dog and she had occasion to speak severely to her maid who had entered the room to take the canine phenomenon for a walk. The maid had said: "Come along, Fifi," just like that.

"Wilson," said the lady, curbing her indignation with an effort, "I do not insist on your calling Fifi 'Miss,' but I must ask you, when you speak to her, to say 'Please'!"

The best story of the westerner's reference to women, writes a correspondent of a London paper, "is concerned with the conclusion of a little fight with Indians. The latter got the best of it and the squaws arrived with stone hammers to finish off the wounded. As a squaw thus armed was approaching a half-conscious victim his friend called out to him: "Look out, Bill, there's a lady coming."

CENTRAL AVE. P.-T. A. MEETING IS VERY INTERESTING

Members and friends of the Central Avenue Parent-Teacher association, of which Mrs. D. F. Reichard is president, were entertained at a very interesting evening meeting at the schoolo last night. The program opened with the flag salute and singing of "America." This was followed bythesecretary's and treasurer's reports. The members of the Boys' Glee club of the high school were present and sang "The Postillion," and as an encore gave "My Old United States."

On the count of the parents present, Miss McIntyre's room, the second grade, was awarded the prize for having the largest number of parents represented. F. J. W. Henry delighted the audience with a number of Scotch songs and stories. The program also included songs, "Land of Hope and Glory," and others by the high school Boys' Glee club; monologues and stories by Harry James of the James Record Shoppe; vocal solo by Mrs. Ray Bentley, "In the Dark," "Land of Love," and "A Slumber Song." Ralph Pearson, noted etcher, explained about the exhibition of his pictures which is being held in the school auditorium and told where some of them had been made.

The members of the association are planning to conduct a food sale on March 3, to be in charge of Mrs. R. L. Young, vice president. Mrs. Helen Graham Cole succeeds Mrs. Young as program chairman, the latter having been selected to fill the office of the vice president, who recently resigned. The association will have charge of the apron booth at the Glendale Federation of Parent-Teacher association's bazaar at the high school on February 23, it was announced. At the close of the program refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

WOOL GROWERS' PROBLEMS

Many wool growers find market quotations on wool very confusing and are unable to translate published market reports into terms which will enable them to calculate the approximate value of their own clips. The difficulty arises from the fact that there are so many factors which enter into the determination of wool values.

The solution of this problem and other problems will be clearly demonstrated at the branch of the College of Agriculture during Stockmen's Week from February 19 to February 24.

During the annual Stockmen's Week at the university a special meeting of the California Wool Growers' Association will be held. This meeting is set for Thursday, February 22, and special features of the day will be wool grading demonstrations and an exhibit showing the market grades of sheep. Report of the proceedings of the National Wool Growers' convention held at Spokane, January 24 to 26 will be made by Mr. F. A. Ellenwood of Red Bluff. The latest developments in the transportation of spring lambs for eastern markets will be presented by President A. T. Spencer.

The Stockmen's annual banquet will be held the evening before this meeting making it convenient for the sheepmen to attend both these events. At last year's banquet there were 250 present and this year's Stockmen's Week promises to be even a greater success.

NEAR EAST RELIEF TO STAGE 'MILK RELIEF' HERE

School Children Are to Be Asked to Donate Cans of Evaporated Milk

Rev. and Mrs. Charles V. LaFontaine, authorized representatives of the Near East Relief from Los Angeles, are in Glendale and are planning the annual campaign for this worthy cause. Mrs. C. V. LaFontaine presented the matter to a special meeting of the local ministers at the Christian church on Wednesday morning, and it was unanimously approved, and arrangements are being made with each pastor to have the Near East Relief presented to the congregations of the city.

By permission of the board of education, and with the approval and co-operation of Mr. White and the teachers of the city a special "Milk Benefit" will be given next week at all the grammar schools of Glendale.

Rev. LaFontaine has arranged with the various principals to show a new motion picture of the Near East Relief in which is given the wonderful educational and vocational training which the children of Armenia are receiving. None of the sad details are in this picture but rather the bright side of the redeeming of the children to a better living and working condition.

The arrangements for the milk benefits are as follows:

Tuesday, Feb. 13, 3:30 p. m., at the K. of P. hall, corner of Park avenue and Brand boulevard, for the children of the Glendale Avenue, Acacia Avenue and Magnolia Avenue schools.

Wednesday, Feb. 14, 3:15 p. m., at the Wilson Intermediate school for the children of the Wilson Avenue, Colorado and Pacific Avenue schools.

Thursday, Feb. 15, 3:15 p. m., at the Grand View school.

Thursday, Feb. 15, 7:30 p. m., at the Broadway school for the children of the Broadway and Doran Street schools.

Friday, Feb. 16, 3:15 p .m., at the Central school for the children of the Columbus Avenue and Central Avenue schools.

Friday, Feb. 16, 3:15 p. m., at Cerritos Avenue school.

The price of admission is free, but each child is asked to donate one or more large cans of evaporated milk for the benefit of the children of Armenia. Wherever this picture has been shown it has excited the greatest interest and the amount of donated milk has been very gratifying.

H. G. CHAFFEE CO. REFLECTS TRADE CONDITIONS

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the H. G. Chaffee company held Monday, February 5, at the offices of the company at 912 East Third street, Los Angeles, the results of the year 1922 were made known. After paying 8% on the preferred stock there was nearly 35% left for the common stockholders.

While the company did not open many new stores during the year it did spend considerable money in remodelling many of their stores, so that their patrons might have the latest conveniences in service.

The H. G. Chaffee company had its origin in a small Pasadena store purchased by H. G. Chaffee in 1902, and its present strength is the result of a steady and conservative growth under the guidance of H. G. Chaffee, its president.

F. E. Chaffee, vice-president and general manager, says: "This growth has been due entirely to the strict adherence to the policies originally formed by H. G. Chaffee, namely: Absolute satisfaction or money back, high quality merchandise and a complete line, and a service commensurate with the selling price. These policies have created such a demand for Chaffee stores in various communities that it has been necessary to secure additional capital to meet the situation. To accomplish this the one million dollar H. G. Chaffee Warehouse company has been organized for the purpose of taking over their extensive warehouse, office and garage properties together with the stores equipment."

F. E. Chaffee further states that the company will shortly offer to the general public the unsold portion of a $250,000 issue of 7% preferred stock in the warehouse company. This stock should appeal to the general public because of the large amount of assets behind it, and the fact that the income is guaranteed by the H. G. Chaffee company, and should particularly appeal to the people of Southern California because of the further reason that it will give them an opportunity to participate in the growing business of one of Southern California's big concerns.

STRENGTH OF FARM BUREAU

"The strength of the Farm Bureau today is due to the fact that from the beginning of its organization, education and information have served as the foundation of the structure," said Dean Edward C. Johnson of the State College of Washington addressing a gathering in Walla Walla county recently.

"Those of us who have watched it develop from the first three or four county bureaus in as many states to a powerful nation-wide organization have realized that while in this rapid growth some mistakes have been made, nevertheless as Farm Bureau activities have been and are based on the judgment of forward-looking farmers, supported by the best available information, its program in the main has been and will continue to be sound and of untold benefit to agriculture.

"The Farm Bureau has been in intimate contact and in cooperation with our great educational agencies, the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the land grant colleges with their teaching, experimental and extension staffs. They have learned to depend upon these institutions for accurate, serviceable information, and these institutions in turn have been stimulated and helped to function even more fully than heretofore.

"The agricultural experiment stations of the land grant colleges have been a constant source of information for the extension service work and the Farm Bureaus. Organized for the purpose of advancing our knowledge concerning agricultural science and practice, they have been going ahead and blazing the trail, and the facts, the organized knowledge have assembled have served as a sound foundation for the Farm Bureau work. Largely in proportion as the Farm Bureaus will continue to build on such solid foundation in the future, I believe their success will be assured."

OREGON LAW MAKERS ARE WORKING

Ice Cream Must Have Ten Per Cent of Butter Fat They Decide

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 9.—January 29, the half-way mark in the legislative session, and the last day on which a legislator could introduce a bill in either house without running the gauntlet of the legislative committee, found more than 200 bills in the house hopper and almost that many before the senate. Most of the important work of the law-making body is usually done after the half-way mark has been passed. This year has been no exception.

Oregon ice cream soon will be on a 10 per cent butter fat basis. The Cary bill, which would increase the butter fat content in the frozen confection, is finding favor with the powers that be and will soon become a statute. Oregon is essentially a dairy state, and the bill has drawn considerable attention.

Senator Simmons, "the lady from Multnomah county," showed her stuff the other day when the champions of a cosmetic license bill sought to have her introduce a measure reequiring all "beauty-wrights" to be licensed. "I'm kind of out of touch with that industry," she said. "You see, I haven't been inside of a beauty parlor for years." "One woman in a million," muttered the lobby as it withdrew.

One of the toughest morsels the current legislature has been asked to masticate has been the Astoria relief bill. The fire-stricken city, which lost about everything but its civic spirit, wants $500,000 to rebuild essential conveniences, necessities and utilities. The federal congress has distinguished itself by the slowness with which it has acted on a relief bill, and the state body, to a considerable extent, is emulating its big brother at Washington. The state legislature is torn between a desire for economy and retrenchment, and the desire to extend the obviously needed aid to Astoria. The half million required would be a blow to the commonwealth's plans for economy.

"This bill wont hurt me, but it will hurt some of you honest men," shouted Representative D. C. Lewis unselfishly during the heat of debate the other day. It didn't take his quick wit long to perceive what all the laughter was about.

One of the most important bills passed by both houses and signed by the governor is the act naming Oregon's east-west highway, running from Ontario, on the Idaho border, to Seaside, on the Pacific ocean, the "Old Oregon Trail," in commemoration of the pioneers who used that road to penetrate the Oregon fastnesses from Idaho to the sea. From a primative trail, the road has gone through all the stages of development, until now a great section of it has been paved. It is said to be one of the few permanent roads in the United States which still follows the original historic route.

ROUTINE HIGH LIGHTS OF COUNCIL

In the way of routine business at the regular meeting Thursday night the city council passed a resolution correcting the assessment on North Adams in accordance with protests offered, and instructed the street superintendent accordingly.

No protests were received against the improvement of Doran street from Columbus to San Fernando road under the Vrooman Act, nor were there any against the improvement of Fernando court from San Fernando road to the S. P. tracks under the same act, and the proceedings will therefore go forward.

February 23 was named as the date for the hearing of protests against the setting aside for commercial purposes of four lots cornering on Stanley avenue and Verdugo road.

The map of Tract No. 6135 was adopted.

February 15 was set as the date for the hearing of protests against street assessments on the Hamlin and Hepburn subdivision.

A resolution declaring an intention to change and re-establish the grade of Mariposa street, was adopted.

Another resolution adopted declared an intention to improve a portion of Gilbert avenue, Pacific avenue, etc.

The bill board ordinance went over until another meeting.

A new ordinance for the licensing of trucks and repealing ordinance 274 was offered by Councilman Lapham, and truckmen are to be invited to be present at the first reading next Thursday night.

Ordinances abandoning proceedings for the opening and widening of Ard Eevin avenue and Ben Lomond drive were offered by Davis and Lapham.

An ordinance starting afresh, proceedings for the opening and widening of San Fernando road, was offered by Kimlin.

An amending ordinance was offered by Davis to increase the salary of the senior billing clerk in the public service department, $10, to create a new police sergeantcy for Patrolman Nunn; to provide for a superintendent of playgrounds, a payroll clerk, etc.

A new electrical ordinance recommended by the building department bringing the old ordinance up to date was presented to the board with copies for each member, and was offered by Councilman Lapham. It is said to have been under consideration for several months.

Easements were granted to J. G. Huntley and Alexander Mitchell.

The Subtle Greenhorn

BY JOHN BRECK

What a stir you make in the world when you stride through a September pasture! How the army of insect invaders flees before you as the stiff grasses rasp their harsh protest, so different from the yielding whisper of the spring! You might feel your puissance if the cow grazing behind you didn't raise a greater one.

Besides, the tiny pale-green bugs with long, serious faces and wings lapped like a peaked roof, which make up the rank and file of the retreating foragers, merit more attention than they usually get. It somewhat abates our horror of their big cousin, the cicada, to reflect that the wee "leaf-hoppers" destroy more than a quarter of all grass that grows. The summer dryness is not all due to the sun; they probably suck more than he can drain from the clustering leaves on the hottest day. The grass blades can turn edgewise to cheat his thirsty rays, or droop their tips into the shade, but so long as a stalk is tied to its root how can they escape the piercing proboscis of the sap-drinkers? And how in the name of ingenuity are we to help them?

Of course some plants seem to help themselves. Is that not why the wild parsnip secretes a deadly sap, manufactures its own bug poison? Or the mullein grows fuzz on the backs of its leaves, where its pores open? Or the thistle, spines, to hold them at beak's-length? Does the sand-verbenal ooze a clamminess to make herself unpleasant perching? It is hard to judge the bug's reactions; a hopper is so incessantly "on the hop" a flea is somnolent beside him. The first which gave me leisure to inspect them were stuck to the stem of a tarweed, which looks like a night-blooming coryopsis and acts on the principle of "every plant its own flypaper." It looked very effective, but—

I found one on a sheet of the best human manufacture. He was feebly struggling. As time passed I began to marvel at his tireless energy. For he did not settle down like the flies. He had been there a good two hours before I poised a magnifying glass above him. The tricky devil! Can you guess what he was doing? He was crawling out of his skin!

He was rising, gorgeous as a phoenix—if a phoenix has a golden head and green and scarlet wings—from the stranded hulk of his former self. I had a flash of bright new varnish as he tipped up his stern to try his new hoppers, kicking them derisively under my nose. Then he gave a spring and was off.

Where to? Well, a shameless huzzy of a yellow-jacket had been hanging around waiting for him to join her and I opined it was no love affair he transacted with that virago. Our safest allies seem to be the buzzy wings and the little birds.

A PERSONAL LETTER TO GLENDALE P. T. A. SOCIETIES

Dear Friends:

When you go shopping in Glendale for your Spring Suit you will probably find out what the various buyers have brought back with them from New York. You will at least visit several stores before making your purchase. You will be governed by style, price and quality. You will eventually buy from the store that presents the best bargain.

Do you not think it advisable to have the purchasing committee of your Parent-Teacher Association do likewise? When you plan to buy a PHONOGRAPH for your children to march by in their respective school—or to be educated in high class music through a record—is it not the most practical plan to give each music dealer in Glendale an opportunity to display his particular brand of machine?

There are probably only three or four dealers in Glendale and each and every one has given assistance—be it financial or otherwise—in building up this wonderful city. Think this over.

Very truly yours,

THE REAL STORY OF POCAHONTAS IS TOLD

One of the most striking facts brought to light in connection with the search, by the Historical Society of Richmond, Va., for the body of Pocahontas, the Indian princess heroine of John Smith's colony in Virginia, is that her name was not Pocahontas, but Matoaka. Pocahontas was a nickname, or "little-name" used by her father, Powhattan, when she was a child of ten years. It was at this age that she first became known to the English settlers in Virginia, first as the friend of Captain John Smith, and later as the savior of the struggling community from the anger of her father. Pocahontas was an Indian word meaning "little tomboy."

William Strachey, secretary of the colony, who arrived in Virginia with Lord Delaware in 1610, is the authority for the statement that the Indian girl's name was Matoaka. He wrote, "Pocahontas, or Matoaka, the daughter of Powhattan, is married to a discrete English gentleman, Master Rolfe, after she had renounced idoltry and had been baptized." He added that Pocahontas, meaning "little tomboy," was the "little name" given to children according to a custom of the Indians, although she was called Matoaka at "more ripe years."

Further proof is to be found in the inscription on the portrait of Matoaka painted in London by Simon de Passe in 1616, when she made her triumphal entry into England as the wife of John Rolfe. The inscription reads: "Matoaka als Rebecca, filia Potentiss Prince; Powhatani Imp. Virginiae," or "Matoaka alias Rebecca (her baptismal name) daughter of the powerful prince Powhattan, Emperor of the Virginias." This picture is now in the possession of a descendant of the Rolfe family in Norfolk county, England.

After her marriage with John Rolfe she died on shipboard on the eve of her return from England to America, and was buried in a churchyard near Gravesend. The site of her grave is being sought with the object of returning her body to America for burial under a memorial monument.

The story of Pocahontas, or Matoaka, is indeliably engraved in the records of the colony, but it is probable that the legend of her saving John Smith from death at the hands of Pohawttan's executioners by covering his body with her own, was somewhat exaggerated. At that time she was barely ten years of age, and it is hard to credit a ten-year-old girl with so much courage and resolution. Her greatest service to the colony, that of teaching John Rolfe the right way to cultivate tobacco, has been overshadowed by her romance.

John Rolfe, and not Sir Walter Raleigh, was the man who first introduced tobacco into England, and who foresaw the wealth to be derived from its cultivation. It was due to Matoaka, his wife, that the commercial possibilities of tobacco planting were due. Rolfe was introduced to the use of the weed by the Indians and at once recognized its value. But when he attempted to grow tobacco on a commercial scale, he ran into practical difficulties growing out of lack of experience with the plant.

A the time when he made his first experiments, the colonists were at "outs" with Powhattan, a powerful Indian chief, in control of all the tribes surrounding the settlement. Matoaka, or Pocahontas, his daughter, had been kidnapped by the settlers and was being held as a hostage. She was consulted by Rolfe and, following her advice, he was able to bring his experiments in tobacco growing to a successful conclusion.

The few writers in the colony confined their meagre chronicles to events. They had no space for detailing romances. But it can be inferred that, drawn together by their study of tobacco, Rolfe began his courtship of the Indian princess. They were married on April 5, 1614. A year before that time the Indian girl had been baptized under the name of "Rebecca."

After their marriage, Rolfe sailed for London with his wife, seeking support for his plantations. Matoaka, known throughout England as "la belle sauvage," aroused interest and admiration wherever she went. Contemporary writers spoke of her "royal dignity" and her beauty. Queen Elizabeth received her and was much struck with her personality and charm.

While she and her husband were in London, her son, Thomas Rolfe, from whom many Virginia families trace their descent, was born. Then came Rolfe's appointment as Secretary of State for the Virginia Colony, and they boarded a ship bound for the Americas. Matoaka was stricken with a sudden illness before the ship left England, died, and was buried at Gravesend.

The parish register, with its crabbed handwriting and disregard for spelling and accuracy characteristic of the time, states that, on March 21, 1616, "Rebecca Wrolfe, wyffe of Thomas Wrolfe, gent. a Virginian lady borne, was buried in the chauncel." The exact site of the grave was soon forgotten, but it is hoped, by a comparison of contemporary records, to determine its location.

OBSERVATIONS

BY A GLENDALE OLD TIMER

I am going to tell you this week, not about "The Light that Failed," but of a light that burned on and on for nearly 40 years and then brought millions of dollars to people, many of whom had lived for years in abject poverty.

In the extreme northwest corner of Clark County, Illinois, is the little town of Westfield, famous as being one of the few municipalities in the nation that never had a saloon in its nearly three quarters of a century of existence, owing to the location there for many years of a United Brethren College. Westfield is situated on a slight elevation, but between it and Casey, 12 miles south, the country is low and flat. Just after the Civil war, Timothy R. Young of Marshall, the county seat town, bought a good-sized farm three miles south of Westfield, with the fond hope of establishing a kind of summer resort. He built a commodious house of many rooms and sunk wells, as was necessary in that day, to provide drinking water for man and beast. Half a mile west of the house, in a large pasture where considerable stock was kept, a driven well was started, the idea being to bore deep enough to start an artesian flow. When a depth of about 40 feet was reached, the tools were suddenly blown out of the hole, much to the alarm of the workmen, who could not be induced to resume the work because of fear of another "explosion" and because of a peculiar odor that was very annoying and somewhat stupefying. A carelessly thrown match caused a sudden blaze and this further frightened the men, so they withdrew their tools and abandoned the work.

Mr. Young, however, though he knew nothing of natural gas, which indeed was unthought of then as a commercial possibility, determined to experiment a bit with this new fuel. He succeeded in extinguishing the flame and capping the well and then he laid a pipe line to his house, turned the gas into it, and had his cook stove run by it. His summer resort venture was a failure, however, so he tore up the pipe line, rented the farm and returned to Marshall to live. But the gas that streamed continually up from the well became lighted again and it continued, year after year, to burn a steady flame. A railroad line was built, running only a few feet from it, and tramps used to huddle gratefully over the flame at night and to make their coffee over it. More than once I have seen it, as I passed along the lonely road, a reddish flame, reaching only about three feet above the surface of the ground, and burning with a steady glare.

And so it continued to burn for nearly forty years, until, in 1905, a Mr. Hoblitzell, a prominent oil promoter of Findlay, Ohio, happened to be in Westfield on business one day. As he wished to catch a train in a hurry he decided to drive the 12 miles to Casey, through which runs the Vandalia Line, a branch of the great Pennsylvania system. On the way the burning well was passed and its history was related to Mr. Hoblitzell by the driver of his conveyance. He said nothing but did a mighty lot of thinking, which resulted in another trip to the region in a short time. He quietly secured oil leases on the property where the burning well was located and many of the surrounding farms. The light that had burned steadily for more than a third of a century was extinguished and soon a derrick arose over the location. Drilling resulted in the bringing in of a paying well at a very limited depth. Then came an oil rush. Marshall, the county-seat town, Casey, next in importance and little old sleepy Westfield were soon thronged with eager promoters who leased everything in the vicinity. New derricks rose like magic and in a short time oil was spouting in every direction. Leasing and drilling proceeded southward, the oil pool being very narrow, not more than 6 or 8 miles wide. Casey was reached, then the township south of it and one to the east of that, were included. The wells were all comparatively shallow, so drilling progressed at a rapid rate. There were many poor farmers in the district, some eking out a bare existence on 20, 30 or 40 acres, going about in rags, while wives and children showed the pinch of poverty. Many of these soon became opulent. Some of them were slow in adapting themselves to the changed circumstances and their actions were ludicrous in the extreme.

One of these, David Claypool by name, transformed in a few days from direst poverty to moderate wealth, at once shed his patched habilaments, fitted out his family with "glad rags" of radiant hue and prepared to enjoy a life of opulence to the utmost. He decided that he must have an auto in order that his dignity as an oil magnate should be upheld, so he journeyed to Terre Taute, Indiana, the nearest point where such a vehicle of transportation could be secured. He bought one, paying over $2,000 for it and in a few lessons learned to drive. He then proudly steered his new toy out the National road to Marshall, where, after a few turns about the city just to show the natives that he knew all about it, he started for home, 20 miles away. Arrived at the barnyard gate, the habit of a lifetime asserted itself, and, yelling "Whoa!" to the supposed team he was driving, he jumped out to swing wide the barrier. But alas! his auto, though well trained, had not been instructed in the art of stopping to the command given a team of horses, so it went serenely on, smashing the gate to splinters and finally bringing up against the barn with a thud. Dave was game, however, and often recounted, gleefully, this ludicrous end to his first auto trip.

The oil development crept on south in a very narrow space, never 20 miles wide, into Crawford county, then on into Lawrence, where it ran out. Drilling was started in Wabash, the next county south, but no oil was developed. In nearly all of the field, production is still good though of course nothing like it was at first. But, beginning at the starting point, where the beacon light had burned for so many years, deep well drilling was begun a few years ago, with marked success and this system has been extended over nearly all the field, I am told.

The revivifying effects on sleepy old Marshall, Casey and Westfield were electrical. Business doubled and trebled, new commercial blocks and many handsome residences were erected and the two cities first named secured free mail delivery as a result of largely increased postal receipts. Marshall, though it was 15 miles from the nearest oil well, was chosen as the location for the general offices of the Ohio Oil company, which was supreme in the new field. This company bought for the purpose the 10-room mansion built and occupied for many years by Lyman Booth, dry goods merchant and business magnate, who was a brother of U. S. Senator Newton Booth of California, and a cousin of Booth Tarkington, who was named for him. The famous author, when a freckle-faced, sandy-haired boy, spent many happy hours playing in the yard surrounding the beautiful home place and on the streets and alleys of the old town with a gang of as mischievous boys as one can find, and he was generally the leader. His sister, Miss Hautie Tarkington, was also a frequent visitor of the Booth family and many times have I chronicled in the weekly newspaper I used to publish in Marshall, visits of this beautiful young lady to her relatives in the sleepy little town across the Wabash. The Tarkingtons lived then, as now, in Indianapolis, Indiana. As soon as the offices were permnanently established, with Fred Hillman in charge, some of the leading officials, including Mr Hillman, bought homes and became boosters for the city of their adoption. Also steps were taken to supply the city with natural gas for heating and in a few instances for lighting purposes, the same to be pumped from the nearest wells, 15 miles distant. I had my 10-room, 2-story house piped for the new fuel, which I used in a large grate and in seven stoves in as many rooms, including kitchen, dining room, bath room and bedrooms, for less than $20. Such a job now would cost many hundreds, I am told. The rate per thousand cubic feet was 25 cents. In a few years, however, the pressure became so low that the system had to be abandoned.

The oil business stimulated the little city's growth to a marked degree and steps were taken soon to secure free city mail delivery. I was in charge of the postoffice then and by appealing to business men to increase the use of stamped envelopes and by the help of the oil company I succeeded in so boosting the receipts of the office that the volume of sales required to secure free delivery was reached at the end of the first six months of trial, January 1, 1909. I helped to lay out the delivery routes and the service started July 1, 1909. I was not there to see this consummation of so many hopes for I resigned my position in March to move to California.

One more town of the county which profited largely from the oil business though no wells were located within three miles of it, was Martinsville, 10 miles southwest of the county seat. Here the oil company bought 1000 acres of land bordering the town on the west and north and on this tract built 200 great reservoir tanks with a combined capacity of over a million barrels of oil. From this tank farm a pipe line was laid to Whiting, Indiana, more than 200 miles distant, over hills, through hollows, under small streams and the Wabash river. A right-of-way a few feet in width was purchased and this was patrolled by guards. When the pipes became "gummed up" so that the flow of oil was retarded even when the full force of the giant pumps was exerted, a "cleaner" was put in at the starting place and forced through to the other end. This is a revolving ball just large enough to fit into the pipe and has little knives set in its circumference. As it rolls along these knife edges cut the gummy substance and the inside surface of the pipe is left smooth. As this little ball is started on its long journey a guard starts his patrol along the path above the pipe line. He hears the grinding of the knives below him as the ball rolls along. If it stops, he knows it, as does the engineer in the pump house. If alternating release and re-appiication of pressure fails to start it again on its journey the pipes must be taken up and the obstruction removed. This rarely happens, however, and the little ball rolls on its way to the end of the line, each guard following its course to the end of his beat and then the next one takes up the task. I am told that there is a pipe line similar to this one connecting Robinson, headquarters for the Crawford county oil field, with the Atlantic seaboard.

Adversity borrows its bitterest sting from our impatience.—Bishop Horne.

THE GROWTH OF CITIES

Some cities become greater than others of seemingly equal advantages, because of reasons that are not at first apparent. One may be so situated as to have the advantage of kindly and equable climate. This fact is a distinct influence in bringing people. Those who come bring capital of some kind. Perhaps they have money, and thus, in seeking investments, develop latent resources that had been unknown. Or if they bring only willing hands and an ambition to make the most of their abilities, their presence adds to local wealth. In one way or another each individual of a community contributes to its commercial life. But the land, the grains and fruits and stock that it will produce and maintain; its measures of coal, minerals and oil must remain the real foundation for community prosperity. Growing the raw material is the office of the soil.

There has been for years a decided trend towards the cities, but an adjustment according to conditions is certain to come in due time. Therefore the trend mentioned is nothing about which to worry. If a man finds that in the glow and clamor of the city, while there is much to interest him, he is unable to make a living, the fact that there is land available from which he can get a good living will send him countrywards.

In every city there are many who have a great yearning for the open spaces, and for the comparative independence that is the concomitant of life out of hearing of the 6 o'clock whistle. They do not all have the means to affect the change, but those who are able to follow their desires, by going, will make the situation better for such as must remain behind.

Fertile land is not to be permitted to lie fallow for an indefinite period. There is a demand for it, ever increasing. The call of the country is more and more finding city hearers eager to respond.

A STRAIN ON COURTESY

By decision of the British courts a claim of about $14,000 in damages was allowed as the result of an automobile accident. The singular feature of the action was that it was brought by guests of the owner of the automobile. At the time of the accident they were riding in the machine at his invitation. Probably few invitations will be extended to them hereafter. Their course may have been justified in law, but it was a strain on courtesy. Indeed, this phase of the statutes had not been unknown in the United States, where the owner of a machine is responsible for injuries received even by the chance passenger to whom, out of kindness of heart, he had given a lift.

By applying the same principle more broadly, a considerable change might be wrought in social amenities. Were the soup at dinner to be spilled by an awkward servant in such a fashion as to ruin the gown of a lady present by invitation, she might rise from her place indignantly, rush to her lawyer, and file suit. Also she might win the suit, but probably at the loss of standing in the circles accustomed to welcome her.

The principle would seem admirable, however, if applied to the person proffering a drink of bootleg whisky. The one receiving the stuff might not want it, but accept rather than hurt the feelings of the host. But were he to drink, and in consequence go blind, the host would deserve to be mulcted to an enormous total. If the "shot of hootch" proved fatal, the heirs and assigns of decedent would be duty bound to prosecute the matter with rigor.

THE CASE OF MORSE

Charles W. Morse, with two sons and other associates, is to go to trial soon on the charge of defrauding the government on war contracts. The principal in this case is under the peculiar disadvantage of having a record, rendering it very difficult to repose full confidence in his integrity. However, it is not fair that this record should be permitted to handicap him unduly when arraigned at the bar. He will not be on trial then for the deeds of long ago.

Morse was a banker who, convicted of misuse of funds, was sent to a federal penitentiary. He made so successful a pretense of illness, that President Taft pardoned him. The representation to the President had been that Morse virtually was dying, that he could not live in confinement more than a month, and even if released, could not hope to live more than six months. As soon as Morse acquired his liberty he launched into business on a large scale, having no sign of invalidism about him. This trick, albeit cleverely worked, added nothing of value to the Morse reputation.

That there were frauds worked upon the government in war time is certain. Some of these were enormous. They resulted in huge fortunes to the plotters. Morse is accused of being one of the many offenders. If able to prove his innocence, his vindication will not be resented. If he cannot prove his innocence, and once more becomes subject to detention, he might as well understand that playing sick never is effective but once. Even if really sick next time, nobody would believe the symptoms genuine.

Pasadena has been added to the number of cities to engage in a definite plan of publicity. This has worked elsewhere with excellent effect. When a community has confidence in its own attractions and resources, the effort to make wider the knowledge of the facts is doubly profitable. It helps the community, partly through creation of a civic spirit, partly in a material way, and it also benefits the reader for whom the advertisement is intended.

ON FIRM FOUNDATION

Arthur Fleming presents to the California Institute of Technology property conservatively estimated at a value of five million dollars. So substantial an expression of belief in the worth of the school, in the high purpose it serves, merits wide recognition. It was not given with flourish of trumpets. It did not come as the gift of a wealthy man intent upon cutting his fortune in order to escape dying rich. It was the gift of a thoughtful and observant citizen anxious to benefit this generation and generations to come. It helps to establish on firm foundation a center of learning that shall have wider and wider influence as time passes.

In the note that accompanied the gift were a number of suggestions that show the donor to have given the subject deep consideration. Among them is the selection of superior students, and limitation of their number to 2000. Mr. Fleming advises retention of the best instructors "with the most liberal provision in the way of salaries and equipment." He closes with the counsel that the school "keep its standard of the highest."

This liberal donation, together with the modest and yet wholly pertinent suggestions, is highly significant. It shows that men of affairs are recognizing the essential character of such schools, that they realize the beneficent influence of education, and that they know that money advanced to promote education, works a lasting public good.

To the world outside of Ireland the impression deepens that De Valera is the real reason for the continuance of turmoil there. There is the feeling that even if he has failed to accomplish his full desire, that much has been accomplished, and that his continuing activities do nothing but threaten the stability of improved conditions.

Hope is an excellent thing to have, but it is one of the things a pawnbroker will not advance anything on.

GOOD-WILL

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Many people regard the "good-will" of a concern as more or less an airy nothing. They are inclined to smile at it.

Dr. Frank Crane

Looked at one way, it seems quite tenuous. Over a century ago Lord Eldon defined good-will as the "probability that the old customers would resort to the old place."

In the practical business world, however, this mere tendency of mind is of immense and solid value.

Millions of money have been spent for Sheffield cutlery, for Delft pottery, for Venice glass, for Paris fashions, for Gobelin tapestry and for Cremona violins, money which was drawn to these goods simply because of good-will.

Good-will may be intangible and invisible, but so is electricity. And electricity is very powerful.

What is known as "watered stock" has in many instances been nothing but good-will. And this was so powerful that the profits accumulated squeezed out of the water, and the public has eventually bought the stocks at a price many times the value of that originally represented by the visible assets.

All business is built on service, and good-will representing public opinion of that service comes near to being the foundation of business.

Great fortunes are built up on good-will which is fed by proper advertising.

In times past monopoly was supposed to be the basis of great merchandising success. In the modern world, however, monopoly is becoming more and more difficult, if it is not becoming impossible. In other words, good-will is eating up monopoly.

Good-will recognizes the public as the final arbiter. It makes a man's success rest not upon a patent right or a government privilege, but upon the favor of the people.

Instead of this foundation being a shifting or an uncertain one, its solidity will be made plain to you if you will step into the next shop and inquire what goods have the greatest sale. You will find that it is those goods which rest upon a strong and vigorous good-will which has been built up by persistent and judicious advertising.

For instead of being a by-product of modern business, advertising is its very basis.

THE RIGHT WORD

QUERIES

On a New Year's Card

M. Whitelaw: "Will you be good enough to let us know whether or not the following sentence which has been used on a New Year's card is correct: 'We extend to you our Good Wishes and Sincere Appreciation of the Friendship and Support given us during the past'?"

Answer: One would hardly extend appreciation. One might make known his appreciation, but not extend it or offer it. "The Right Word" suggests the following reconstruction: We not only extend to you our good wishes but want you to know our sincere appreciation of the friendship you have manifested towards us and the support you have given us during the past year."

"Ricey"

Joseph Bubov: "Will you kindly advise, through your column, the correct way to spell 'ricy' when referring to some article which has the same appearance as rice?"

Answer: Ricey.

"But Jane and Me (or Myself)?"

Rosalie B. Sonneman: "Would you be so kind as to tell me which of the following sentences is correct and why: 'There will be no other guests but Jane and me; There will be no other guests Jane and myself'? There has been quite a discussion as to which was the more grammatical, and I look to you to straighten us out."

Answer: Either sentence is correct. Myself is more emphatic than me. The right word is is in "There has been quite a discussion as to which is (nor was) the more grammatical."

"Unbeknownst"

Y. W. Felton: "Will you please give the following information: What authority is there for the word unbeknownst in the following heading from a New Jersey paper: 'She Left Home Unbeknownst'? I never heard of the word before. I read your column up here in Clinton, N. Y., with great interest."

Answer: According to the New Standard Dictionary unbeknownst is a variant (interchangeable with) of unbeknown, which is obsolete, but which means unknown.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

JAMES W. FOLEY

Tomorrow,
After all, that is the really wonderful time.
The schoolboy knows it.
Tomorrow he goes fishing or hunting or woodsing or vacationing.
Any one of a hundred joys will be his Tomorrow.

* * *

Today there are school books, study, chores and the like.
But the day will pass.
Night will come.
The school books will be laid aside, the study will be done, the chores finished and happiness will peep through his window at the dawn and bid him come forth to have it.
All this not Today.
Tomorrow.

* * *

Yes, it is a wonderful time, Tomorrow is.
The dream will come true.
The task will be finished.
The tears will be dried.
The storm will be over.
The sea will be calm.
We will reach the harbor of our hopes and aspirations.
And this on Tomorrow.

* * *

And so it has been through time.
Ever before us is the glory of Tomorrow.
The nations will cease their fighting.
There will be the federation of the world, as Tennyson calls it.
We shall know more and more and more of the world and the things about us.

* * *

Tomorrow.
All of the future lies in that word.
All of the hopes unfulfilled.
All of the flowers unblossomed and the grain unripened and the dreams not come true.
All of them shall fruit and blossom and ripen and come true on Tomorrow.

* * *

The clouds hang heavy.
The rain falls.
The voice of gladness is stilled and fails to ring out in the accustomed places.
But Tomorrow—
Ah, then we shall sing.
The troubles shall have passed.
The hearts be healed and made glad.

* * *

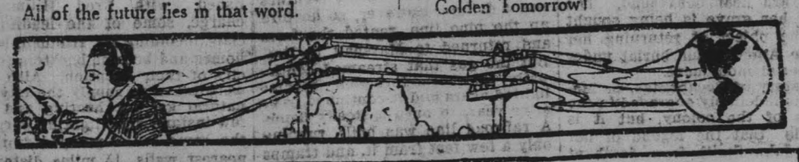
Marvelous Tomorrow.
With its sunshine and its winding paths and its dreams and its glow of Dawn.
For are we not all schoolboys and girls?
Are not our treasures in Tomorrow?
Do we not dream and plan and hope and wish?

* * *

The infant for example.
Tomorrow will be growth and strength.
And manhood and womanhood and place and a going forth proudly into the world.
Who is the parent who does not dream of that Tomorrow of preparation completed, plans matured, accomplishment and establishment and all that for Today's children.

* * *

So look not too much back.
Be so much concerned for the present that its work may be done and its tasks accomplished and its obstacles overcome.
And look upward and forward and onward where Tomorrow is.
Where the Dawn is golden and the noonday warm and the afternoon fragrant with breeze and blossom and the evening and dusk rich with memories.
Golden Tomorrow!



Songs of the Poets

"Child, Child"—By Sara Teasdale (1884)

Child, child, love while you can
The voice and the eyes and the soul of a man,
Never fear though it break your heart—
Out of the wound new joy will start;
Only love proudly and gladly and well
Though love be heaven or love be hell.

Child, child, love while you may,
For life is as short as a happy day;
Never fear the thing you feel—
Only by love is life made real;
Love, for the deadly sins are seven,
Only through love will you enter heaven.

A NATIONAL INTERMENT DAY

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

Let us hope that the suggestion will not frighten the politicians. Many of them need to be interred; but they are not scheduled to be buried on the interment day suggested in this preachment.

As we set aside one special day annually to give thanks for our blessings, why not set another aside and devote it to getting rid of our handicaps? I like the idea; we could make of the day a sort of gala day by interring, actually or figuratively, all our grudges, our prejudices and our petty quarrels. We'd just forget them and wipe them off the slate, shake hands with our enemies and begin over.

But I would not stop with personal relations. With the things I have mentioned as handicaps we should inter the causes that produced them. On national interment day I'd have every man and woman haul from its secret hiding place every treasured saying, every bromidic proverb, each and every parrot like banality which has been serving in the place of reasonable argument and lay the unholy collection before a committee of progressive friends. If they decided the things are too old to be of further use in the present day, I'd have them order their interment, and fine the chap who thereafter made use of the dead.

Take, for example, a saying much treasured by the elders who presided over my youth, "Children should be seen and not heard."

That thing deserves to be put in a vault and sealed up with reinforced concrete. It has ruined kids aplenty in the past and it is time that an increasing public intelligence interred it.

If children are never heard during their formative years how will they learn to carry on a conversation, how to take their places in a gernal crowd and how to correct wrong viewpoints? It is small wonder that the world is filled with men and women who can't talk intelligently, with others whose ideas on entertaining consist of the firm impression that they are privileged to hog every conversation that goes forward in their vicinity and others still who sit owl-like, timid and afraid to speak or unable to think of anything to say.

Many of the girls and boys who write to me declare that as soon as they are in company they are frightened into dumbness, probably because they were impressed with their inability to say anything worth hearing by parents who stopped every eager question with:

"S-h-h-h-h. Children should be seen and not heard."

The new governor, Friend Richardson, has done away with raisin days, prune days, orange and lemon days, loquat days and a varied assortment of divers and sundry other days. In view of this saving, can't we afford a national interment day?

We can. Come, make it unanimous.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

THE COURT'S LIMIT

[Chicago Journal of Commerce]

A judge may set aside the verdict of a jury that convicts a man of murder with evidence sufficient to justify the verdict, but he may not set aside a verdict of "not guilty" by a jury however conclusive and satisfying the evidence of guilt may be.

Such a preposterous verdict of innocence was rendered in a New York court the other day. The trial judge, before dismissing the recalcitrant jury, remarked to them:

"Of course, gentlemen, you are entirely within your rights in finding this verdict, but the verdict shocks and appals this court. Here is a case of a decent, hard-working man killed in his own house at half past five in the morning by a man who went there with the precise purpose of killing. It is shocking to the court and humiliating to me."

The art of securing the acquittal of guilty men flourishes in many cities, to the shame of the state and society.

STATE FAILS TO FUNCTION

[Springfield Republican]

No one will ever be punished although the Herrin mob had no thought of concealment when its leaders gave direction to its frenzies in the full light of day. The case presents an example of the breakdown of the state in the fulfillment of a primary function; and the breakdown has extended from the paralysis of the executive power through all the processes of criminal justice.

RUSSIA'S GOAL

[Cleveland Plain Dealer]

According to Lenine, "Russia is entering Utopia." And somebody has looked up Utopia in the dictionary and found that it is a Greek word meaning "nowhere."

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

It is singular that so many writers should harp on the prospects of war. They have civilization prostrate, laid out cold through some form of agony, every morning. The program for the evening is about the same.

HENRY JAMES

The outlook in Europe is not bright to be sure. At times it does cause the observer almost to despair. Then if he manages to think of the false pretense on which much diplomacy rests, on the bluffs that have not been made good by nations in boastful mood, he derives a grain of comfort. He looks about upon the sanity of progress in his own country, its steady growth, its projects for the future, and becomes aware with a sigh of relief, that if part of the world is addle-brained, his own country remains a region of the sane.

Brisbane is forever gibbering about the ease with which London could be blown off the earth, or Paris sent to a similar fate if British forces loosed their hostile bombs and gasses first. He does this as though there were probability or possibility of either power's conducting itself with all the savoir-faire and thought of logical sequence, of a raging maniac. People are foolish, but not quite fools. Nations are ready to run risks, but they shrink from suicide.

Great fears are builded out of nothing. The Russian bolsheviki constitute a cootie-carrying nuisance, but as for their over-running Europe, the task might as well be delegated to a band of sheep. Even the rulers of the Russian regime show occasional gleams of sense now, whereas a few months ago they gave no sign of mental status above lunacy.

Turkey (at this writing) is likely to sign the treaty or not sign it. Just a little while and few will remember whether the signature was appended or not, and none will care.

Or, in a sentence, the air is crowded with blither not all emanating from the prevalent radio.

Few more singular changes have been noted in the attitude of papers that may be observed in the Hearst assortment. Only a short time back their chief duty was to hate England. The hatred got into editorial and news columns. To students of journalistic matters it would be difficult to recall a campaign of equally unfair, untrue and contemptible propaganda.

Now all the Hearstlings love England. It gives them a chance to hate France. What the purpose in hating France may be is not explained, but the affection lavished on the British now also lacks explanation.

Hearst, whose business was to abuse all things British, went to London. He was asked to dine with the premier. What magic was in the viands nobody but the chef knows, but they changed the editor. Ever since, he has been so affectionate towards the then premier, that, so to speak, he slobbers until his love seems almost maudlin.

A life-size statue of a beautiful woman is said to have been found in the tomb of Pharoah Tutenkhamun. Observers state that it was presenting a "Mona Lisa smile."

Probably a practical world accustomed to accept facts after demonstration, will entertain doubts for a time concerning the whole business of the royal grave robbery. It is almost impossible to conceive of so much gold as is said to have been in the rifled tomb, as remaining there undisturbed for more than thirty centuries.

Moreover, much foolishness has been written concerning the Mona Lisa smile. That the great artist did catch a subtle smile on the face of his subject, and transfer it to canvas with the deftness of genius, is the plain fact. The fiction is that the smile conceals more of mystery than any one of a million other smiles, fleeting, and perhaps never portrayed.

A news item has the caption "Old Antiques," bearing out even more fully than necessary the theory that antiquity is aged. The style, however, is not so bad as the purist might contend. So finished a writer as Fiona Macleod made frequent mention of "old ancient legends."

Many articles that pass as antiques lack entirely the mellowing touch of years, having been assembled in the shop day before yesterday.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

When Joseph H. Bagley was a boy one of the admired pupils in high school was named Jones.

"He was an earnest lad," said Mr. Bagley. "One of the most earnest I ever knew—and sincere. He was forever trying to improve himself and his class and his city and his state.

When Jones graduated from high school he matriculated in a bakery. He made a close study of all branches of the baking trade with a view to becoming a master of it. He projected a chain of bakeries to cover the world. But he over-reached himself.

"He had a theory," said Mr. Bagley, "that if he could make the holes in doughnuts larger the profit would be increased. But he found that the bigger he made the hole the more dough he needed for the rim—and in trying to work out the solution he went crazy and died."

Lots of us are that way. Across the street the young lady has over-extended herself socially. Poor Bill hardly gets home nowadays that he isn't hustled into his pretty clothes and hurried off in handcuffs to a dinner or a reception. He loses so much sleep that he lacks the needful punch in his business affairs. He let a contract get away from him one day because he yawned too much while he was at work on the prospect.

My preacher—that is, the minister who preaches at the church to which I send my wife—is in so many uplifting enterprises of one sort and another that the parishioners are complaining that he pays no attention to the church. Golf has over-extended Tom Fisher. It's a fine game, but a poor occupation. My congressman thinks so much of what he must do to be re-elected that he isn't keeping up with the nation's business. I do not care so much for form letters telling me that he is a bully boy with a glass eye as I do for some evidence of activity in the matter of immigration and child labor and taxation.

It isn't advisable to stretch the hole in the doughnut too far.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—?

The largest caisson ever constructed, was recently launched as a permanent part of the new Hudson river vehicular tunnel. It is 93 feet 3 inches wide, 108 feet 6 inches high and 37 feet deep.

Redheads, blue-winged teals, green-winged teals, Canada geese and different varieties of brant can fly from 68 to 98 miles an hour, but usually fly much slower.

Slate dust from waste slate mixed with a binder is being used in England for making ordinary dwelling houses in from 10 to 14 days at a cost about half that of brick.

MASONS OFFER AUDITORIUM TO SCHOOLS

Temple Board Offers to Rent Hall Daytime to Relieve Crush

Relief of critical congested conditions at Glendale High, occasioned by the addition of 175 new pupils this semester, is promised by the Masonic Temple board, which has submitted a proposition to rent to the school for day use the aditorium on the main floor.

The matter is now being considered by the high school trustees, all of whom have thus far expressed themselves as being very favorable to the idea. If carried out, glee club classes will rehearse at the temple, leaving the school auditorium free as a study hall. Two class rooms, now used as study halls, will be vacated and the pupils transferred to the auditorium, the rear of which will be closed off by the doors provided for that purpose. This will make available three class rooms, which will afford a great measure of relief to teachers as well as students. Every effort had been made to solve the problem without outside space, but it could not be accomplished without serious injustice to teachers and students.

The choruses will have the use of a piano and a stage at the temple and can do their work there as well as in the school auditorium and without interfering in any degree with those who are endeavoring to study.

If the proposition is accepted, as now seems probable, it will probably go int effect next Monday.

BLIND MAN'S ASHES CAST TO WIND

LONG BEACH, Cal. — For the first time, it is believed, a man's ashes have been scattered from the air.

In his will, William E. Dixon, who was blind, asked that his ashes be "carried aloft in an airplane and cast to the four winds of heaven."

Dixon's sister carried out his wish. His body was cremated and Undertaker J. H. Nelson, ascending with Aviator Earl Daugherty, scattered the ashes over the city from a height of nearly a mile.

They quite agreed on all things, high and low,
They were in truth and always of one mind,
And that one mind was hers I'd have you know,
And when to evenings out he was inclined
She said: "You'd better stay at home and read,"
And he—he quite agreed.

Or if perchance the question of a car
Arose, and they discussed it pro and con,
He for an open one, as most men are,
And with the merits of it he went on,
Till she said: "A closed car is what we need."
And he—he quite agreed.

And in vacation time they talked about
The beauties of the mountains and the sea,
He for the mountain trails that in and out
Compelled his soul with beauty, until she Declared: "I think the sea is best for you,"
And he—he thought so, too.

And often she declared, when many years
Had passed them by, that though there was much strife,
There was no need for bitterness and tears,
And she had not been bitter all her life.
To give and take, she said—that was the need,
And he—he quite agreed.

MASS MEETING OF LA CRSCENTA IS CALLED

Entire School District Asked to Attend Monday Night

LA CRECENTA, Feb. 9.—A mass meeting of all the residents of the Crescenta school districts has been called by the school trustees of this district for next Monday evening at the school auditorium. The school trustees include C. E. Culberson, H. A. Baldridge and Dr. R. H. Smith. This meeting is called to explain the school situation to the public. The phenomenal increase in school attendance makes it necessary to vote more bonds and add a number of rooms. The trustees would like the co-operation of the entire community, and it is hoped every resident of the Crescenta school district will come and take a personal interest and assist the trustees in their work.

SCHOOL CHILDREN LA CRESCENTA IS CLEVER
